Overview: One form was excluded because the taster marked the form right in the middle of two ratings. Hence it was not clear what was his or her opinion. Not all the tasters evaluated all the wines. A show of hands indicated that the group preferred the Cloudy Bay that also seemed to be the best buy for the prices. In general, the New Zealand wines came up on top of the French, before the prices were revealed. The Latour Martillac was the lowest rated and the most expensive of all.
